Her name belongs above the door.

Catherine Eddowes, known as Kate, was a Londoner with a life, family and friendships of her own. On 30 September 1888, she was murdered by the killer known as Jack the Ripper in Mitre Square, directly opposite this pub.

*His name became infamous.
Hers deserves to be remembered.*

We have named this pub in Kate's honour: to remember the woman whose life was taken, and to give her a lasting place in the City's everyday life.

Here, Kate is the name above the door.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

Good taste. Great company.

Wines

Old World classics and New World discoveries, alongside fine Champagnes and sparkling wines.

Cocktails

Small-batch cocktails made with exceptional spirits. Timeless classics and modern favourites.

Low & No

An exceptional selection of low- and no-alcohol beers, spirits and wines, carefully chosen for flavour and character.

Spirits

Fine whiskies and bourbons, outstanding gins, rums and tequilas. Explore our extensive back bar and discover its hidden delights.
